Summary: This is a story of what I think would happen if Georgie escaped Pennywise's clutches; also includes how Georgie escaped.

The escape of Georgie

In the town of Derry, USA, year 1989, a boy named Billy made a paper boat for his younger brother, Georgie to sail in the river of rain. The name of said boat was 'S.S. Georgie'. Luckily it floated and sailed away. That is, until it came across the storm drain. Georgie tried to catch up with it but didn't manage to and the boat sailed down. Georgie lay himself down to see if he could find it. Then a pair of yellow, terrorizing eyes popped up. "Hello Georgie. What a nice boat. Want it back?" asked to owner of the eyes. "Yes, please", replied Georgie. Then an evil giggle came out of the biggest mouth ever to be seen by man. "Do you want to come down and see the circus?" the menacing voice wondered. "I'm not really supposed to talk to strangers..." Georgie whispered. "OK then. Georgie, Pennywise. Pennywise, Georgie." Pennywise laughed. Georgie let out a little laugh at this. "What's your favourite circus snack?" asked the clown. "Um..." "Popcorn?" "Popcorn!" Georgie and Pennywise laughed. "I should be going now", said Georgie. "What about your boat?" asked Pennywise. "Keep it!" {Billy and Georgie's house, Billy's bedroom} "Hi Bill", greeted Georgie. "W-where's the b-boat?" "Funny story" "L-lets h-hear it", begged Billy. "The boat sailed faster than I was going and by the time I caught up with it, it floated down a storm drain. That's when I met Pennywise!" Georgie said with glee. "H-hang on, w-who's Pennywise?" asked Billy. "Pennywise is a white-faced, red-mouthed and yellow-eyed clown who lives in the sewers", Georgie explained. "I d-don't m-mean to be b-blunt but g-get out p-please", Billy requested. "OK Bill", Georgie quietly sighed whilst leaving the room. In that moment, Billy got his Walkie-Talkie out and contacted his friends Richie, Eddie and Stanley. "Guys, meet me at the stream. We need to talk."
